ACCIDENTAL MARRIAGES .- Marriages are often the result of accident. It seems strange, but the most prudent persons will sometimes conceive an irresistible attachment at the suggestion of a word or look. When once under the spell of the verb "to love" they go through all the forms and finish the conjugation of the verb before the altar. The few may give the subject the consideration it deserves, but the many, there is to fear, are guided by impulse. A skipper of a coasting vessel called at the village inn and asked the landlady, a young widow: "Do you know where I can get a mate? I have lost my

"I am sorry for you, Mr.——," she said.
"I want a mate, too, and cannot get one.
I'll do; if you'll be mine I'll be yours."
He closed with the bargain, and the widow keeping her word, he is now supplied with two mates.

A young man at a church bazar was buttonholed by a lady; she would not let him go until he bought something. He looked at her stall, which contained fancy work of warious kinds.

"Why," he said, "I see nothing here that would be of the least use to me, a bachelor, except yourself. The rest would be dear to me at any price."

'I will be cheap enough," she said, coax-"If you could be dear enough, perhaps-" keeping up agreeable conversation the while, and before all was done he had pur-chased everything on the stall. Then, at settling up, there was something said about

"I cannot return any money," she said, blushingly, "but if you think me dear enough, there's mamma. She can give you my hand." The bargain was accordingly concluded.

An eminent doctor, who had saved the life of a lady, a personal friend, was asked his charge. He said he generally allowed his patient friends to remunerate him as they thought befitting.

"But don't you often get disappointed on these terms?" she laquired.
